Completed Actions

Abstract: This action would exempt from the maximum hours of service requirements those individuals or business entities engaged in bona fide emergency relief operations as defined in this proposal. The exemption would be available primarily to interstate public utilities, and fuel-delivery motor carriers and drivers of commercial motor vehicles responding to an emergency situation at the request of State or local government officials. FHWA has consolidated this rulemaking with RIN 2125-AD43 into 2125-AC67.

Abstract: The FHWA has withdrawn its June 1, 1991, notice of proposed rulemaking which called for revising the procedures for evaluating existing highway bridges for eligibility under the Highway Bridge Replacement and Rehabilitation Program. The proposed procedures would have replaced the use of the "sufficiency rating formula" with "level of service" criteria. The decision to withdraw was based on evaluation of docket comments and changes to the bridge program as a result of the Intermodal Surface

Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991, PL 102-240.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 4601 et seq

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 24; 49 CFR 1.48(cc)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amended 49 CFR 24.103(d), which concerns the qualifications of appraisers who value property for Federal and federally assisted projects. The amendment provides that, if a detailed appraisal is necessary, and the agency employs a contract (fee) appraiser to perform the appraisal, such appraiser must be certified in accordance with Title XI of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA), PL 101-73, 103 Stat. 183, 511, August 9, 1989. Title XI of the FIRREA requires the establishment of State programs for the licensing and certification of appraisers performing appraisals for federally related transactions under the jurisdiction of Federal financial institution regulatory agencies. Using such certified appraisers for detailed appraisals of property subject to the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act (Uniform Act), 42 U.S.C. 4601-4655, will strengthen the integrity of the appraisal process. This rule applies to the real property acquisition activities of 18 Federal agencies including the Department of Transportation.

2424. RULEMAKING TO DELETE "DUE CARE" PROVISIONS FROM THE OCCUPANT CRASH PROTECTION STANDARD

Significance: Nonsignificant
Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401
CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.208
Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In 1986, NHTSA added a provision to Standard No. 208, Occupant Crash Protection, allowing vehicles that fail one or more of the injury criteria in the standard to still be considered as complying with the standard if the manufacturer could show it had exercised "due care" in the design and construction of the vehicle. The Motor Vehicle Safety Act requires all safety standards to be expressed in "objective terms." Further, the courts have held that compliance with safety standards must be determined by objective measurements and without recourse to any subjective determinations. The inherently subjective nature of a "due care" determination precludes the use of that concept as an aspect of compliance with the safety standards. Therefore, the "due care" provisions would be proposed to be deleted from the crash protection standard.

Abstract: A Notice of Intent announced that NHTSA will publish a notice of proposed rulemaking (NPRM) concerning improved head impact protection from interior components of passenger cars, i.e., roof rails, pillars, and front headers. This rulemaking action and notice of a publication date for the NPRM are required by the NHTSA Authorization Act of 1991. This action is considered significant because of safety and cost implications.

Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: On April 17, 1991, the agency published a final rule to extend its requirements to multipurpose passenger vehicles, trucks, and buses with a gross vehicle weight rating (GVWR) of 6,000 pounds or less (56 FR 15510, effective September 1, 1993). This notice proposes to delay for one year the effective date of the final rule requirements to light trucks. The agency believes that this delay would ease the economic burden of this regulation on the manufacturers of these vehicles with a minimal impact on occupant safety. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: Standard No. 301, Fuel System Integrity, has as its purpose the reduction of deaths and injuries occurring from fires that result from fuel spillage during and after motor vehicle crashes. However, CNG and propane, when used as motor fuels, are not covered under the current requirements of this standard. NHTSA desires that any safety performance standard which may be established for the fuel system integrity of vehicles using CNG or propane as a motor fuel be in harmony with the activities and regulatory authority of others to the extent possible. A public meeting

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1407; 15 USC 1410

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 552; 49 CFR 571

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard (FMVSS) No. 301 specifies requirements for the integrity of motor vehicle fuel systems so that fires that result from fuel spillage during and after motor vehicle crashes may be reduced. This standard applies to passenger cars and school buses, and to multipurpose passenger vehicles, trucks, and buses that have a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less. The California Highway Patrol (CHP) petitioned the agency to specify requirements in FMVSS No. 301 to reduce fuel spills from the fuel tank or fuel lines on heavy trucks and truck tractors over 10,000 pounds. The fuel spills, according to the CHP, are due to damage caused by road debris. On May 2, 1988, the agency published a grant of petition for rulemaking in the Federal Register for the CHP petition. However, the agency is granting the petition pending the results of its forthcoming investigation of fuel-tank fires in over-the-road trucks, on which research is presently underway.

The available evidence indicates that belted occupants in frontal collisions are not at risk for a serious head injury when their head does not contact any vehicle surface or component but may be at risk for neck injury in those non-contact crashes. Abstract: NHTSA proposes a comprehensive review of headlighting requirements of FMVSS No. 108 which may be simplified, while being consistent with motor-vehicle safety. The agency has concentrated its efforts into five principal areas. This action addresses the first of these, which is the feasibility of a standard directed toward onboard original-equipment headlighting performance rather than toward performance of individual aftermarket headlamps in a laboratory environment. This action is considered significant because of safety implications. Based on comments received, a second NPRM was issued.

Final Rule Stage

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On January 8, 1981 (46 FR 2136) the agency published a notice of proposed rulemaking on rear underride crashes relative to small vehicles colliding with the rear of a heavy vehicle (a vehicle with a gross vehicle weight rating (GVWR) greater than 10,000 pounds). Rear underride occurs when the front of the smaller vehicle slides under ("underrides") the rear end of the larger vehicle. The agency received over 100 comments on the proposal, some of which raised issues about possible alternatives to the proposal and about the burdens of the proposal on small businesses. The SNPRM sought to retain the safety benefits of the earlier proposal while meeting the concerns about potential small business impacts. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 1.50; 49 CFR 571.214

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposes to amend standard 214 to clarify how the quasi-static door strength test procedure is to be conducted in case of several types of vehicles. During rulemaking that extended the quasi-static test requirements to trucks, buses, and multipurpose passenger vehicles with a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less several issues were raised concerning the application of the current test procedure to certain types of vehicles. This action solicits comments on this proposal to amend the standard to resolve these issues. This proposal addresses the positioning of the loading cylinder in testing four different types of doors: 1) a door whose lower edge is not at all points parallel to the sill; 2) a door whose lower or rear edge has molding; 3) double cargo doors; and 4) a door which does not have a window. This action is considered significant because of the public safety implications.

SYSTEM

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC
1401; 15 USC 1403; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.105; 49 CFR
571.135

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking to establish a new standard for passenger-car brake systems grew out of NHTSA's efforts to harmonize its standards with international ones. After review of comments to the NPRM and SNPRM, a second SNPRM proposed refined and revised test procedures and performance requirements which should achieve harmonization while being fully consistent with the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act. The new standard 135 would replace standard 105 as it applies to passenger cars. This action was originally considered significant, but subsequent events have resulted in fewer issues to be resolved, and this project is no longer considered as such.

import nonconforming vehicles or equipment for research, investigation studies, demonstrations or training, or competitive racing events submit in advance of importation information supporting a request for admission and obtain a letter of permission from NHTSA. Upon further evaluation, an SNPRM proposed further amendment to require that importers required to furnish bonds upon importation of nonconforming vehicles be permitted, as an alternative to sureties, to furnish cash deposits or obligations. The SNPRM proposal would also allow importation of vehicles less than 25 years old for study under certain conditions.

Abstract: The NPRM proposal for a roadway illumination system to serve as a vehicle-based alternative to existing equipment-based headlighting systems will not proceed at this time. Instead, the SNPRM proposed minimum photometric values for certain lower beam test points and test zones above the horizontal where only photometric maxima are presently specified, so as to maintain headlighting systems' ability to illuminate overhead traffic signs. The SNPRM also proposed to ensure that replaceable light sources intended for replacement purposes, other than the HB types presently incorporated, would have the dimensions and performance of the original replaceable light source and would require the manufacturers of such light sources to file dimensional information with NHTSA in a public docket pursuant to a new regulation, proposed part 564, "Replaceable Light Source Dimensional Information."

Abstract: This notice proposes to implement the penalty provisions contained in section 153 of Title 23, USC, Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991. That section provides that a State that fails to adopt and put into effect motorcycle helmet and safety belt use law before the first day of FY 1994 (October 1, 1993) is subject to a penalty of having the Secretary of Transportation transfer funds from that State's Federal-aid highway and highway safety construction type programs to that State's apportionment under the section 402 safety program. This proposed rule sets forth the criteria to be used to determine a State's compliance or non-compliance with the Act and proposes the mechanism by which the agency will inform states of their compliance status.

Abstract: The Center for Auto Safety petitioned for rulemaking to amend FMVSS No. 213, Child Seating Systems, to require manufacturers of child restraints to maintain the names and addresses of owners of child safety seats. The purpose of this registration is to enable manufacturers to directly contact owners of seats in case of recall. The amendment was adopted. Abstract: This action would implement a new program enacted by the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of FY 1991. Section 333 of the Act requires the withholding of certain Federal-aid highway funds from States that do not enact legislation requiring the revocation or suspension of an individual's driver's license upon conviction for any violation of the Controlled Substances Act or any drug offense. This action set forth the manner in which States must certify that they are not subject to this withholding, and the disposition of funds that are withheld. It is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: The agency granted a petition for reconsideration requesting that the effective date of the new quasi-static side door strength requirements be phased in. This final action established a brief phase-in period and delayed by one year the effective date for double-opening cargo doors, doors with no windows, and certain contoured doors. Abstract: The NPRM proposed to require for towing vehicles that actuation at the interface between towing vehicles and trailers be at least as fast as actuation at the towing vehicle brake chambers; however, review of comments determined the requirement would lead to loss of manufacturing flexibility by requiring more custom design at unjustified additional cost. Therefore, that portion of this project was terminated in the SNPRM. In that same document, different requirements were proposed concerning control line pressure differential. The final action amended the pneumatic timing requirements as to control line pressure balance by adopting a new dynamic test procedure for determining the control signal pressure differential.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 45 USC 431; 45 USC 438; PL 100-342

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 218

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: FRA regulations prescribe minimum requirements for certain railroad operating rules and practices, including blue signal protection of railroad employees engaged in the inspection, testing, repair and servicing of rolling equipment. Such activities may require employees to work on, under, or between such equipment and subject them to the danger of personal injury posed by any movement of such equipment. Train and yard crews are excluded from blue signal protection, unless assigned to perform such work on railroad rolling equipment that is not part of the train or yard movement and that they have been called to operate. FRA proposes to restate the exclusionary language to accommodate augmentation of a crew by using a "utility" employee which will permit increased efficient use of employees by the railroads. Alternative safety procedures are proposed to prevent injury. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest for safety of railroad employees.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC app 1612(b)(2)

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 609

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulation sets forth requirements regarding transportation for the elderly and persons with disabilities mandated by section 16 of the Federal Transit Act, as amended. The ADA and DOT's implementing regulations supersede many provisions of Part 609. The Federal Transit Administration will revise Part 609 to acknowledge new ADA provisions and to update continuing provisions emanating from the Federal Transit Act.

Abstract: Section 303 of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 directed the agency to issue guidelines for evaluating cost-effectiveness and local financial commitments in developing new fixed guideway projects. However, section 3010 of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (ISTEA) directs the agency, in its evaluation of new fixed guideway projects, to consider a number of matters in addition to cost-effectiveness and local financial commitment—specifically, costs related to congestion, improved mobility, air and noise pollution, and energy consumption, and the degree to which a project may promote economic development and serve the needs of transit dependent

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1377; 49 USC 1441

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 241

Abstract: Historically, the source document for the Passenger Origin-Destination Survey was the auditor's coupon of the ticket. Until recently, these coupons provided all the information that was needed for the Survey. In the last few years, the carriers have begun using trip passes in conjunction with the tickets, thereby eliminating some of the data that is required to be reported in the Survey. Other innovations used by the industry, such as funnel flights and code-sharing, have impacted the Survey and obscured some of the data that is required to be reported, such as change of planes and junction points. This rulemaking will explore whether there are alternative sources for the data and modernize the collection system to keep pace with the industry.

Abstract: Maintenance of appropriate information about pipelines is essential for emergency response, compliance with safety standards, and other purposes. As part of a continuing policy to adopt similar requirements for gas and hazardous liquid pipelines where appropriate for safety, this action proposes to equalize as far as possible the requirements that gas and liquid operators keep maps and records to show the location and other characteristics of pipelines. Operators would also be required to keep an inventory of pipe and annually report mileage and other facts. In addition, operators would be required to provide certain information to State agencies upon request. This is a significant action because of congressional and State concerns about the need for appropriate public officials to have

Abstract: This proposed action would amend the reporting requirements of 14 CFR 234 to require the on-time reporting performance of all flights, in response to an Inspector General's audit finding and recommendation, and to various industry comments. Under the current regulations, flights that are cancelled or late by 15 minutes or more because of a mechanical problem are not reported. The proposal would also require reporting of the aircraft tail number and wheels-up and wheels down time for each flight. This data would be used, among other things, to reduce airport delays. Abstract: Currently commuter air carriers providing scheduled passenger service file two quarterly traffic schedules. One schedule summarizes nine traffic elements while the other schedule provides the origination and destination for each carrier's on-line passengers. The Department has installed a new traffic and market data system for certificated and foreign air carriers called the T-100 system. This system could be used for commuter air carriers, providing the Department with one automated traffic and market data system for all carriers. This system would be less burdensome for the commuter air carriers and be more efficient for the user.

Abstract: Certain DOT 3AL cylinders made of aluminum alloy 6351 were discovered developing cracks during service and occasionally leaks developed resulting in loss of contents.
This ANPRM was to alert and inform all persons possessing these cylinders of the problems, identify those cylinders at risk, and suggest steps to minimize risks.

HAZARDOUS LIQUID AT 20 PERCENT

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Federal pipeline safety standards governing hazardous liquid pipelines do not apply to pipelines operated at 20 percent or less of the specified minimum yield strength of the pipe. When the standards were issued in 1969, these pipelines were thought not to pose an unreasonable risk to public safety because of their low operating stress levels. Since then, however, a number of accidents have been reported on low stress level pipelines, particularly involving harm to the environment. This rulemaking action would assess the need to extend the Federal safety standards to cover these low stress level pipelines (except gathering lines), and, if warranted, apply the standards to those pipelines.

2576. + HYDROSTATIC TESTING OF CERTAIN HAZARDOUS LIQUID PIPELINES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Recent accidents involving petroleum pipelines demonstrate the potential for catastrophic losses if a large spill occurs in a populated area. Studies have shown that accidents attributable to latent material or construction defects can be prevented by restricting operation to not more than 80 percent of a prior test or operating pressure. In this regard, significant results have been achieved by imposing such an operating restriction on pipelines that carry highly volatile liquids. This rule would extend this existing safety standard to all hazardous liquid pipelines that are subject to Part 195. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest in the safety implications.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672; 49 USC 1804; 49 USC 2002

Abstract: Adequate procedures for pipeline operation and maintenance, backed up by personnel training, have proven effective in minimizing the potential for accidents. Gas operators are required to have such procedures, but the existing requirements lack the clarity and specificity needed to assure a uniform, broad-based level of safety for all pipelines. Therefore, this proposal would clarify the existing requirements, make them more comprehensive, and, where appropriate, similar to the more detailed requirements applicable to the operation and maintenance of hazardous liquid pipelines. Also, a few additions and clarifying changes would be made to the hazardous liquid pipeline requirements. This is a significant action because of the need for adequate procedures to provide a basis for training and qualifying operator personnel.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672(a); 49 USC 2002(e)

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192; 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Each year a large percentage of gas and hazardous liquid pipeline accidents are caused by excavation damage. Based on existing rules intended to reduce damage to gas pipelines in populated areas, this action would require hazardous liquid and carbon dioxide pipeline operators to provide damage prevention programs, and gas operators would have to expand their programs to cover rural areas. This is a significant action because of widespread interest in the use of "one-call" programs to prevent damage to buried pipelines. Where appropriate, operators would have to participate in "one-call" programs.

Abstract: This rulemaking would amend the Hazardous Materials Regulations (HMR) to list and regulate, in all modes of transportation, those materials identified as marine pollutants by the International Maritime Organization. The rule is necessary to implement annex III of the 1973 International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships, to increase the level of safety associated with the transportation of environmentally hazardous materials. The rule is significant because of substantial congressional and public interest. Annex III is effective for all parties to the treaty on July 1, 1992.

Abstract: This notice solicited comments on the merits of a petition for rulemaking from the National Tank Truck Carriers proposing to amend the Hazardous Materials Regulations to require shippers of hazardous materials by highway, in cargo tanks, to obtain documentary proof that the motor carrier possesses the minimum level of financial responsibility required by 49

CFR part 387. Comments received generally oppose imposition of the petition's proposed requirements.
Evaluation of the merits of the comments indicate safety would not be significantly enhanced by the proposed requirements. Therefore, this rulemaking will be withdrawn.

2586. DETERMINING THE EXTENT OF CORROSION ON EXPOSED GAS PIPELINES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Corrosion is a major cause of gas and hazardous liquid pipeline accidents. A safety standard applicable to liquid pipelines requires operators to examine exposed pipe for evidence of external corrosion and, if harmful corrosion is found, to investigate further to determine the extent of the corrosion. As part of a continuing policy to adopt similar requirements for gas and liquid pipelines where appropriate for safety, this action proposes that exposed gas pipelines with evidence of harmful corrosion be investigated to determine the extent of the corrosion.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672; 49 USC 1804

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Abstract: In a few reported instances, excessive amounts of hydrogen sulfide were introduced into natural gas pipelines. High concentrations of hydrogen sulfide are very detrimental to steel pipelines and extremely toxic. This action examined the need to establish a maximum allowable concentration and other control measures. Based upon public comments and the views of its gas pipeline advisory committee, RSPA has decided that the proposed rule is unnecessary to public safety.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Abstract: Many gas distribution operators look for signs of dying vegetation as a leak survey technique. This technique is not as effective as other available methods, and leaks have occurred in areas found safe by vegetation surveys. This action would require the use of alternative methods to meet the leak survey requirements, where appropriate, and clarify that leakage surveys must be conducted at least at 3-year minimum intervals on cathodically unprotected pipelines that are not electrically surveyed for corrosion.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

Abstract: This proposal was to eliminate or qualify the "grandfather clause" in the gas pipeline safety regulations that permits operation of an existing rural or offshore gas pipeline found to be in satisfactory condition at the highest actual operating pressure to which the segment was subjected during the five years preceding July 1, 1970, or, in the case of an offshore gathering line, July 1, 1976. Based on comments to the ANPRM and pipeline safety data and analyses, RSPA has decided repeal or modification of the "grandfather clause" is unnecessary for public safety.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

Abstract: The gas pipeline safety standards in 49 CFR part 192 currently incorporate by reference the National Fire Protection Association Standards Nos. 58 and 59 for the design, installation, and operation of petroleum gas systems. However, these NFPA standards are not referenced for the design, installation, and operation of peak shaving plants used to supply petroleum gas to an otherwise natural gas distribution system, although NFPA Standard No. 59 is meant for that purpose. This action would extend the incorporation by reference of Standard No. 59 to include peak shaving plants. It also would redefine the term "petroleum gas" consistent with commercial usage.

Significance: Agency Priority
Legal Authority: 46 USC app 1114; 46

Abstract: These regulations would amend the procedures for the calculation of guideline rates for certain preference cargoes carried in U.S.-flag vessels that have been in effect since January 1, 1990. Based on MARAD's experience gained in administering these regulations and observing their effect on the industry, MARAD is proposing to make amendments that are more equitable to the operator and that will improve the performance of the fair and reasonable guideline rates. This action is considered significant because

Abstract: The National Shipping

amend its regulations at 46 CFR part 315, concerning Agency Agreements, and incorporate therein provisions as revised, now found in Parts 316, 319, would formalize MARAD's existing policy and procedure for appointing general agents and administering agency agreements by including in the regulations pertinent information that is consistent with a revised Service Agreement and Application for Appointment as General Agent that are being adopted by MARAD and a Ship

Abstract: Revision of 46 CFR part 383 conforms many of its provisions to those in the regulations governing the calculation of guideline rates by the Maritime Administration (MARAD) for bulk preference cargoes carried on bulk vessels (46 CFR part 382). MARAD's experience in administering the bulk vessel regulations has demonstrated the need for comparable provisions in the liner regulations. The principal amendment is that MARAD would use the actual operating costs of each vessel type in the carriage of preference cargoes, rather than use a system of combined average and actual costs that has not accomplished its objectives. This rulemaking was considered significant because of substantial public interest.

One amendment eliminates the disallowance of M&R subsidy payment where the operator does not timely file a repair summary or supplement with MARAD. The other clarifies that the Department of Transportation (DOT) Office of Inspector General (OIG) performs the required audit of an operator's M&R cost, pursuant to agreement between MARAD and the OIG.

2660. DEFINITION OF "BRAND LABEL" FOR WINE; AND STANDARD WINE CONTAINERS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 27 USC 205(e)

CFR Citation: 27 CFR 4

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: ATF is proposing to amend the regulations to provide that standard wine containers shall be so made and formed so as not to mislead the purchaser. Wine containers shall be held (irrespective of the information container on the label) to be so made and formed as to mislead the purchaser if the Director determines, based on industry practice, or consumer understanding, that the size and shape of the container when considered in conjunction with the placement of the label and the packaging of the product, are likely to mislead the purchaser as to the identity of the product. ATF is proposing to amend the definition of "brand label" to make it consistent with the principal display panel approach of the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act. On September 8, 1992, the standard wine and distilled spirits container issue was withdrawn from the notice of proposed rulemaking.

Abstract: This regulation will allow winemakers to use new wine treating materials and processes in the production, cellar treatment, and finishing of wine, if such materials and processes are found by the wine industry to be in accordance with "good commercial practice." No alternatives are being considered. No cost is associated with this action. This action will benefit winemakers by giving them more tools to produce quality wine and will benefit consumers by ensuring that more quality wine is available for purchase. This regulation will also allow a slightly more liberal alcohol label tolerance for wines under 7 percent alcohol by volume. This action is being taken because of the difficulty producers of the new light wine cooler products have in meeting the current alcohol label tolerance requirements. No other alternatives are being considered. No cost is associated with this action. This action will benefit producers of light wine cooler products by liberalizing alcohol label tolerance requirements which have been found to be too restrictive.

the following: securities underwriter, letter of credit enhancer, originator of loans to collateralize the debt securities, or a commercial credit provider. Such multiple roles may serve to reduce the quality of disinterested services provided to both issuers and investors and further expose the bank and the depositors to significant liabilities if investors or issuers suffer losses as a result of a bank trustee's failure to act in their best interests. To the extent possible, the OCC would like to ensure that national banks do not assume conflicting roles which may become unmanageable if the security goes into default. Although the opportunity for national banks to serve in more than one capacity with respect to a debt security issue is not new, there appears to be an increased interest by national banks to undertake multiple roles. This regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial (cont)

Abstract: The Federal Deposit
Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 requires the Federal banking agencies to review their capital standards to ensure that those standards take adequate account of interest rate risk, concentration risk, and risks from nontraditional activities. National banks may become exposed to interest rate risk due to the composition of their asset, liability and off-balance sheet portfolios. This rulemaking will formulate a methodology to include an assessment of interest rate risk in the OCC's capital standards. In addition, this rulemaking will formulate standards to take into account concentration risk and risks from nontraditional activities. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 12 USC 93a

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, August 1, 1993.

Abstract: The OCC is proposing a regulation to implement section 39 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, as added by section 132 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991. Section 39 requires the OCC and other Federal banking agencies to prescribe certain safety and soundness standards for the insured depository institutions and depository institution holding companies for which it is the primary Federal regulator. Standards must be prescribed in three principal areas: (1) Operational and managerial; (2) asset quality, earnings, and stock valuation; and (3) employee compensation. If an insured depository institution does not meet one of these standards, section 39 requires that the institution establish a plan to achieve compliance with the standard that is acceptable to the primary regulator of the institution. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

Legal Authority: 12 USC 93a; 12 USC 1818; 12 USC 1881 to 1884; 12 USC 3401 to 3422

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 21.11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The OCC, as part of an interagency task force, has designed a uniform multi-agency criminal referral form. The form will facilitate financial institutions' compliance with criminal activity reporting requirements, and will enhance law enforcement agencies' ability to investigate the matters reported in the criminal referrals. The information from the form will also be entered into a new interagency data base which will enhance the regulatory and law enforcement agencies' ability to track criminal and administrative cases. This uniform criminal referral form is intended to replace the various criminal referral forms currently used by Federal bank, thrift, and credit union regulatory agencies and by financial institutions. The purpose of this proposed rule is to conform OCC's regulations to the new procedures for completion and submission of the uniform criminal referral form. This action is intended to improve reporting of crimes relating to financial institutions and to serve as a basis for a new interagency computer data base. This regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Abstract: The OCC is amending its recordkeeping and confirmation requirements for securities transactions undertaken by a national bank for its customers. This final rule broadens an exemption from requirements that banks maintain certain records and establish certain policies and procedures. The exemption for banks with an average of less than 200 securities transactions per year is expanded to 1,000 transactions per year, exclusive of transactions in U.S. Government and Federal agency obligations. The purpose of broadening the exemption from 200 transactions per year to 1,000 transactions per year is to reduce the regulatory burden on banks of all sizes that engage in a low number of securities transactions per year. With respect to transactions, as agent, in U.S. Government and Federal agency obligations, the OCC is amending its regulations to make the OCC's recordkeeping and confirmation requirements consistent with requirements under the Government Securities Act of 1986 (GSA), which governs Government securities brokers and dealers. Abstract: The OCC is proposing a regulation to implement section 304 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 which requires the Federal banking agencies to adopt uniform regulations prescribing standards for real estate lending. Section 304 defines real estate lending as extensions of credit secured by liens on interests in real estate or made for the purpose of financing the construction of a building or other improvements to real estate, regardless of whether a lien has been taken on the property. In establishing these standards, the agencies are to consider: The risk posed to the deposit insurance funds by such extensions of credit; the need for safe and sound operation of insured depository institutions; and the availability of credit. The agencies are proposing to establish loan-to-value (LTV) ratio limitations on real estate lending by insured depository institutions. Certain transactions would be excluded from the LTV ratio limitations. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

Abstract: This final rule eliminates the requirement for regulated institutions to obtain appraisals by certified or licensed appraisers for real estate-related financial transactions having a value, as defined in the rule, of $100,000 or less; permits regulated institutions to use appraisals prepared for loans insured or guaranteed by an agency of the Federal Government if the appraisal conforms to regulations or other written requirements of the federal insurer or guarantor; excepts appraisals involving one- to four-family residential properties from certain minimum appraisal standards under specified conditions; and adds a definition of "real estate" and "real property" to clarify that the appraisal regulation does not apply to transactions involving mineral rights, timber rights, growing crops, or similar interests in real estate when the transaction does not involve the associated parcel or tract of land. This regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Abstract: The OCC has adopted its proposal to amend its regulations on assessments to increase the assessment schedule marginal rates by 30 percent and set asset brackets for all national banks. Also, the OCC is changing the method used to index the assessment schedule for inflation or deflation. The OCC will now adjust the marginal assessment rates. In the past, the OCC adjusted the asset size ranges against which the marginal assessment rates were applied. This final rule affects national banks, District of Columbia banks supervised by the OCC and federally licensed branches and agencies of foreign banks. This final rule is intended to provide adequate funding for the increased examination requirements necessitated primarily by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991, but also by other changes in the industry. This regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Abstract: The OCC is adopting a final rule to implement section 38 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, as added by section 131 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991. Section 38 requires each Federal banking agency to implement prompt corrective action for the institutions that it regulates. The agencies have also revised their rules of practice for hearings to establish procedures for the issuance of directives and other actions required under prompt corrective action. Section 38 requires or permits the agencies to take certain supervisory actions when an insured depository institution falls within one of five specifically enumerated capital categories. It also restricts or prohibits certain activities and requires the submission of a capital restoration plan when an insured institution becomes undercapitalized. The regulation is necessary to establish the capital levels at which institutions will be deemed to come within the five capital categories. The regulation also establishes procedures for issuing and contesting prompt corrective action directives including directives requiring the dismissal of directors and senior executive (cont)

Description

This semiannual agenda of regulations lists all projects within the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) as of July 31, 1992, for the development of regulations to appear in the Code of Federal Regulations. This agenda lists existing regulations under development by the Offices of the Assistant Chief Counsel (Corporate), Assistant Chief Counsel (Field Services), Assistant Chief Counsel (Financial Institutions and Products), Assistant Chief Counsel (Income Tax and Accounting), Assistant Chief Counsel (Passthroughs & Special Industries), Assistant Chief Counsel (Criminal Tax), Assistant Chief Counsel (General Litigation), Associate Chief Counsel (Employee Benefits and Exempt Organizations), and Associate Chief Counsel (International) of the Office of Chief Counsel, IRS. The following information is provided for each regulation project: The title, priority status; its effect, if any, on small business; the part of the Code of Federal Regulations affected; the legal authority for issuing the regulation; a brief description of the problem to be addressed in the regulation; and a timetable of action taken and to be taken. Under Additional Information, there is provided the control number of the project within the Chief Counsel's office and the names and telephone numbers of the drafting and reviewing attorneys.

In an effort to reduce burden and promote growth, the IRS and Treasury continually review existing regulations and regulation projects. In Notice 92-12 in the Internal Revenue Bulletin (I.R.B. 92-16), issued in April 1992, the Internal Revenue Service proposed to close 113 regulation projects and withdraw 9 proposed regulations. This review was intended to identify areas where the IRS could, by closing or withdrawing the project or regulation, reduce the regulatory burden without a significant diminution in the availability of necessary guidance. Many of these projects have become virtually obsolete or involve guidance in an area in which the operative requirements are fairly straightforward and taxpayers are proceeding comfortably without the need for an overlay of regulatory requirements. This semiannual agenda reflects the closing and withdrawing of 84 regulation projects as a result of that effort.

By direction of the Secretary of the Treasury.
Shirley D. Peterson,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 382 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Except as provided in regulations, sections 382(b)(3)(A) and (d)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 provide that income or net operating loss for the taxable year that includes the change date is allocated ratably. Notice 87-79, 1987-2 C.B. 387, states that regulations will, in certain cases, provide taxpayers with an election to allocate income and loss between the periods ending with and after the change date on the basis of a closing of their books. This regulation project provides a closing of the books election, and in cases where the closing of the books election is not made, provides that (1) extraordinary pre-change items are allocated to the pre-change period to net extraordinary pre-change loss that would otherwise be ratably allocated if the post-change period exceeds a threshold and (2) extraordinary post-change items are similarly allocated.

Abstract: A tax matters partner (a "TMP") of a partnership must keep each partner informed of all administrative and judicial proceedings for the adjustment at the partnership level of partnership items. A TMP also may file a petition for readjustment, file an administrative adjustment, and extend the statute of limitations on behalf of all partners. A partnership may only designate a general partner as the TMP. If a partnership does not designate a TMP, a general partner will be designated as the TMP either by statute or by the Internal Revenue Service. If it is impractical to designate a general partner as the TMP, the Service will designate a limited partner as the TMP. Because a limited liability company does not have a general partner, a limited liability company cannot designate a TMP. Guidance is needed that will allow a limited liability company to designate a TMP.

2781. ● TO CLARIFY THAT THE SERVICE HAS AUTHORITY TO AMEND THE STANDARD INDUSTRY FARE LEVEL (SIFL) AIRCRAFT VALUATION FORMULA

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 61(a) Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Taxpayers want more timely publication of the Standard Industry Fare Level (SIFL) rates, preferably publication in the last quarter of the year before the year in which the rates will be applicable. Difficulties arising from the need to coordinate with the Department of Transportation which furnishes the rates make it virtually impossible to satisfy the request for timeliness under the current system. Therefore, the Service proposes to adopt a Cost of Living adjustment to be published in the last quarter of each year. The rate adjustment will be applied to a base SIFL rate. The Service believes that adopting a COLA adjustment will meet taxpayers needs for timely information and that it will significantly reduce the volume of telephone calls that the Service currently receives on this issue.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 337(d) Internal Revenue Code of 1986
CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Abstract: The Tax Reform Act of 1986 (the "Act") repealed the last vestiges of the General Utilities doctrine ("GU repeal"), thereby requiring corporations to recognize gain in most cases upon the distribution of appreciated property to their shareholders. The Act granted the Secretary authority to promulgate regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Act. It has been determined that GU repeal can be circumvented by conversion of for-profit corporations to tax-exempt entities and other transactions involving tax-exempt entities. This project will develop regulations to assure corporate gain or loss recognition in such transactions.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 382 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

Abstract: These proposed regulations suspend the recognition of income and expenses if certain partners, such as loss corporations, accrue unpaid guaranteed payments. The partner's income as well as the partnership's expense will be recognized in the taxable year in which the partnership pays, with an unrestricted transfer of money, the accrued guaranteed payment. The proposed regulations prevent loss corporations, and other covered taxpayers not subject to U.S. tax, from structuring partnership guaranteed payment that diverts taxable income to the loss corporation or other non U.S. taxpayer which is greater than the ultimate economic benefit realized from the guaranteed payment.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Tax Reform Act of 1986 provides for a new method of computing the tax on distributions of income accumulated by a trust in prior years. The new method, in effect, determines the tax attributable to an accumulation distribution by averaging the distribution over the number of years during which the income was earned by the trust. This is accomplished by including, for purposes of tentative computations, a fraction of the income received from the trust in the beneficiaries' income for 3 of the 5 preceding years. Those 3 years are determined by taking from the 5 preceding years the year with the highest taxable income and the year with the lowest. The fraction of the income included in each of the 3 years is based upon the number of years during which the income is accumulated by the trust. The average yearly additional tax determined by recomputing the tax for the 3 years is then multiplied by the number of years during which the distribution was accumulated. The resulting tax so computed may be offset by a credit for any taxes previously paid by the trust with respect to the accumulated income. (cont)

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1
Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulation will address whether a foreign partner in a tiered partnership arrangement is engaged in a trade or business in the United States by virtue of membership in that tiered partnership where the second tier partnership meets the requirements of being in U.S. trade or business. The alternatives are 1) to conclude the foreign partner is engaged in U.S. trade or business because any member of the tiered partnership arrangements is; and
2) to conclude the foreign partner is not engaged in a U.S. trade of business

TREAS—IRS

where the first tier partnership is not so engaged. Other considerations include the meaning of "principal place of business" and whether an entity may have more than one, and attribution rules applicable to the entities. A problem with the second alternative is that it arguably gives priority to form over substance, however, there are several methods by which the first alternative could be avoided and their appears to be no policy reason to prefer one form of doing business over another. Furthermore, no additional tax would be collected by following alternative 1.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 1502 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

Abstract: Section 1.1502-47(d)(12)(C) restricted the separation of profitable life activities from loss life activities to prevent the gaming that otherwise could occur under the "bottom-line" consolidation rule mandated by section 818(f) as in existence prior to the Enactment of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 (TRA 1984), Public Law 98-369. As a result of the new method of taxing life insurance companies enacted in the TRA 1984, the bottom-line consolidation abuse potential is eliminated, thus eliminating the need for section 1.1502-47(d)(12)(C). Removing this provision will remove an unnecessary restraint on transactions, and a potential device to voluntarily deconsolidate.

Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: Under the regulations payors can pre-check the name/TIN combinations furnished by payees prior to their filing an information return and thereby carryout the purposes of section 3406 in obtaining correct TIN/name combinations. Accordingly, prior to filing an information return a payor may contact the Service concerning the TIN furnished by a payee. Upon receiving such an inquiry, the Service will advise the payor whether the name/TIN combination furnished matches the name/TIN combination contained in the Service's records. If the name/TIN combination does not match, then the payor has the opportunity to contact the payee for correction before filing the information return, thus reducing the likelihood of a notice to start backup withholding and of a penalty for filing an information return.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 301

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under section 6611(b)(1), if an overpayment is credited against an underpayment, interest on the overpayment runs from the date of the overpayment until the due date of the amount against which the credit is taken. Section 301.6611-1(h)(2)(v) of the regulations provides that in the case of a credit against assessed interest, the due date is the assessment of such interest. Section 301.6611-1(h)(2)(vi) of the regulations provides that in the case of a credit against an amount assessed as an additional amount, addition to the tax or assessable penalty, the due date is the date of assessment. A literal application of these regulations' provisions may give a taxpayer interest where none should be paid. The proposed regulations correct this problem by changing the due dates of interest and certain additions to the tax.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 6695 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.6695-1 (b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 1.6695-1 (b) currently requires that, with one exception, income tax return preparers must manually sign returns or claims for refund signed by them. The exception does allow preparers of returns and refund claims for nonresident aliens to use facsimile signatures under certain circumstances. Section 645 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code, added by section 1403 (a) of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, requires trusts, with certain limited exceptions, to use a calendar taxable year. The calendar year requirement means that, instead of being able to spread their duty to sign trust returns over the entire course of a year, preparers must now sign all trust returns before April 15 in order to present them to clients for timely filing. To alleviate this hardship, we are examining the advisability of permitting income tax return preparers of Forms 1041, U.S. Fiduciary Income Tax Returns, to use facsimile signatures and under what conditions such use would be permitted and appropriate.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 7425 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 301

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 301.7425-4(b)(3)(ii), which deals with excess expenses incurred by a purchaser of property after a foreclosure sale and before redemption, provides that the Service may request a written itemized statement from the purchaser regarding excess expenses. If the purchaser does not respond within 15 days, it shall be presumed that no excess expenses are payable. However, even after the 15-day period expires, a payment for excess expenses shall be made after the redemption within a reasonable time following the verification by the district director of a written itemized statement submitted by the purchaser. There is no specific time frame set for the purchaser to submit his claim after the redemption and after the expiration of the 15-day period. We are examining the feasibility of establishing a 30-day time limit within which a final claim for excess expenses must be submitted by the purchaser after the sale of the property. This will eliminate claims for reimbursement of expenses that may be submitted after redemption and sale of the property, where the liens were fully satisfied and released, and all surplus funds returned to the taxpayer.

2963. WRONGFUL LEVY ACTIONS INVOLVING GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 7426 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 301

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The existing language of the regulations under IRC section 7426 is ambiguous and confusing. It has been used in at least one court case as support for the proposition that whenever the Service attempts to seize property of a delinquent taxpayer that is in the custody of a Government agency, regardless of the form of the seizure (i.e., service of a Notice of Levy or of a Request for Setoff), such a seizure is always a setoff, and any third party injured by such a seizure has no cause of action under IRC section 7426. This is not the Service's position. The regulations should be clarified to rectify this misinterpretation.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 7520 of the Internal Revenue Code, as added by section 5031 of the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988, requires that the value of any annuity, any interest for life or a term of years, and any remainder or reversionary interest be determined under valuation tables, revised periodically and the applicable Federal interest rate for the month of the valuation of the interest. The regulations will address the use of the tables, which will be published separately, and will contain rules for making an election where charitable transfers are involved. It will also include rules for rounding the applicable interest rates. In addition, the regulations will modify the current regulations for gift, estate, and charitable transfers of annuity trusts, and unitrusts and pooled income funds.

3069. TAXATION OF SETTLEMENT FUNDS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 26 USC 468B Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: If a liability requires payment to another person and arises out of tort, the obligor is permitted a deduction only as payments are made to such person. See IRC Section 461(h)(2)(c). The obligor is not permitted to accrue a deduction when it makes payment to a settlement fund; rather, it is permitted to accrue a deduction only as payments are made from the settlement fund to the person to which the liability is owed. IRC Section 468B provides that under certain limited circumstances a payment to a settlement fund in respect of tort liability is deductible by the obligor. The provision applies only to payments made to a designated settlement fund. The regulations will address the taxation of a designated settlement fund along with escrow accounts and other similar funds. Under prior law, income earned on amounts deposited in settlement funds were not subject to tax until distribution to the claimants. See Rev. Rul. 71-119, 1979-1 C.B. 103; Rev. Rul. 70-567, 1970-2 C.B. 133. (cont)

Legal Authority: 26 USC 708 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.708-1Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In order to prevent the shifting of the tax consequences between partners with respect to pre-contribution gain or loss Congress amended section 704(c) of the Code in the Tax Reform Act of 1984 and again in the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1989. Treasury believes that in order to fully implement the Congressional intent, the regulations under section 708(b)(1)(B) of the Code need to be amended to insure that the pre-contribution gain or loss is properly accounted for when a partnership liquidates and is reformed. Accordingly, it has been proposed that the regulations under section 708(b)(1)(B) be amended to insure that the pre-contribution gain or loss will be preserved in the liquidation reformation process.

3111. ● USE OF GAAP EARNINGS AS E&P OF FOREIGN CORPORATIONS

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 964 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 952 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulations are proposed as part of Treasury's ongoing simplification efforts. The proposed regulations would modify the computation of earnings and profits (E&P) of foreign corporations by allowing taxpayers to account for inventory costs using capitalization methods used for financial accounting purposes rather than the uniform capitalization rules required by section 263A. The proposed regulations would also permit reliance on financial accounting conventions in computing depreciation for foreign corporations deriving less than 20% of gross income from U.S. sources and maintaining assets with tax bases not materially different from financial book bases. Use of these simplified rules may result in an accounting method change which would ordinarily require the filing of Form 3115 (Application for Change in Accounting Method). However, the proposed regulations waive this filing requirement if its conditions are met.

Generally, the term "commodity" is defined as personal property that is deliverable in satisfaction of a regulated futures contract, certain specified personal property that the secretary determines is to be treated as a commodity or any form or quality of or any interest in such personal property. The term "commodity" does not include a security, regulated futures contract, forward contract, or a form of tangible personal property if the gross proceeds from its sale exceed by more than 15 percent its value as a commodity. The rules proposed include alternative methods (the "exact" and "approximate" methods) of tangible personal property valuation.

3175. EFFECT OF HONORING A LEVY

Legal Authority: 26 USC 6332 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.6332-1(c)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 1.6332-1(c) currently provides that any person in possession of or obligated with respect to property or rights to property subject to levy and upon which levy has been made who surrenders the property or rights to property, or discharges the obligation to the district director is discharged from any obligation or liability to the delinquent taxpayer. Section 1015(t) of Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988 amends Section 6332 of the Internal Revenue Code to provide that a person who honors a levy is protected from any obligation or liability to any other person as well as the delinquent taxpayer. This should cause a reduction in the number of interpleader actions filed because of concerns over liability to third parties.

Abstract: Section 7429 currently provides for administrative and judicial review of jeopardy assessments, but these review procedures do not apply to jeopardy levies. The Technical and to include all jeopardy levy cases in which the general notice requirements

Abstract: The temporary regulations which are cross-referenced in this notice of proposed rulemaking provide guidance as to what is reasonable under the circumstances in the case-by-case determination as to the time and place of examination. The regulations balance the convenience of the taxpayer with the requirements of sound and efficient tax administration. The regulations provide that it is generally not reasonable for the IRS to require a taxpayer to attend an examination at an IRS office other than the office located closest to the taxpayer's home in that district. They also provide that it is generally not reasonable for the IRS to audit a taxpayer at his or her place of business if the business is so small that so doing will eventually require the taxpayer to close the business.

Abstract: The temporary regulations under section 382 of the Code require loss corporations to identify their five percent shareholders and any five percent shareholders of the loss corporation's corporate shareholders. Foreign corporations do not always have the ability to identify their five percent shareholders. This project will consider whether the attribution, aggregation, and segregation rules under section 382 should be modified when applied to foreign corporate shareholders of a loss corporation, and whether the Service should substitute a more convenient inquiry for foreign corporate shareholders than the current five percent shareholder identification.

Abstract: On June 28, 1983, the Internal Revenue Service issued news release IR-83-88 requiring new information reporting by trustees of individual retirement accounts and issuers of individual retirement annuities (including accounts and annuities that are simplified employee pensions). This regulation project will amend the regulations under section 408 to conform them to the reporting requirements announced in the news release. In addition, section 147 of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 amended section 408 (i) of the Code to require that contributions be identified as to the taxable year to which they apply. This amendment will be included in this regulation.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Grantor trusts would file 1099's or nothing at all with the Service, and provide a statement of earnings deductions and credits to each grantor. This will enable the Service to match the reported income from grantor trusts with the grantor's tax return. Different procedures will be required for trusts with single grantors as opposed to multiple grantors. Corporation grantors will be included. Other considerations will be whether backup withholdings rules apply and whether there is a legal basis for requiring a payor to report income directly to the grantor rather than the trust.

Abstract: The Tax Reform Act of 1986 eliminates the requirement that there be a mirrored system of taxation in Guam and the CNMI, and coordinates the tax system of these possessions and of American Samoa with the U.S. tax system. Guam, the CNMI and American Samoa are granted full authority over their own local income tax systems, with respect to income of bona fide residents sourced within or effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within any of these possessions. This grant of authority is effective, however, only if and so long as an implementing agreement is in effect between the possession at issue and the United States which provides for elimination of double taxation, prevention of evasion or avoidance of U.S. tax exchange of information and other administrative matters. Regulations are needed to clarify who qualifies as a bona fide resident and to determine sourcing rules.

Abstract: Prior to the Tax Reform Act of 1986, inhabitants of the Virgin Islands satisfied their U.S. tax liability by filing a return with the Virgin Islands. The Tax Reform Act of 1986 repealed the inhabitant rule to correct an erroneous interpretation of its operation in connection with the Virgin Islands mirror code. Section 1274 of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 clarifies the filing obligations of individuals in the Virgin Islands. Bona fide residents of the Virgin Islands are required to file only one return with the Virgin Islands in which they report worldwide income and identify the sources of income from the Virgin Islands will be required to file two identical tax returns one with the US and one with the Virgin Islands and pay a pro rata amount of tax to each. Regulations are needed to clarify who qualifies as a bona fide resident. It is anticipated that the regulations will provide a facts and circumstances test for determining bona fide resident status. It is unknown what the operational costs will be.

Abstract: Provision would amend section 1.1502-3 of the regulations when dealing with the transfer of section 38 property between members of an affiliated group. Currently section 1.1502-3(f)(2) provides that a transfer of section 38 property between members is not a "disposition" within the meaning of section 47 of the Code. The area of concern has been sales of section 38 property outside the group immediately after the transfer. The amendment to section 1.1502-3(f)(2) would incorporate the holding in Rev. Rul. 82-20, 1982-1 C.B. 6 which would require recapture.

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.1502-32(T); 26 CFR 1.1502-32(k)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: When a subsidiary declares a dividend while a member of a consolidated group, but pays the dividend after disaffiliation from the consolidated group, the basis of the subsidiary's stock is not reduced by the amount of the dividend. The problem is caused by a difference in timing of the two events (declaration of dividend and payment of dividend) and its effect on earnings and profits and basis. This regulation will alleviate the problem by providing that basis of the subsidiary's stock will be reduced when the subsidiary declares a dividend.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 1502 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.1502-13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 1.1502-13 of the Income Tax Regulations provides the general rule that the term intercompany transaction means a transaction during a consolidated return year between corporations which are members of the same group. Section 1.1502-13(f) provides as a general rule that deferred gain attributable to a selling member will be triggered when the asset leaves the group. The regulation, in effect, does not deal with a situation where a selling member exchanges property subject to Section 1.1502-13 rules in a nontaxable exchange to an outside party. Moreover, the current regulations do not adequately cover tax free transactions between members. This proposed regulation will provide rules for certain common nontaxable exchanges within the affiliated group.

Such data is currently extracted from the monthly Thrift Financial Report which will be discontinued as of January 1, 1993. The collection of this data would be retained, so that the Federal Home Loan Banks would be able to continue to publish adjustable rate mortgage indices.

Abstract: In January, 1989, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the predecessor to the OTS, issued an advance notice of proposed rulemaking on early intervention which proposed defining a particular level of capital below which a savings association would be in unsafe and unsound condition to transact business. On December 19, 1991, the President signed into law FDICIA, which addressed this matter under "prompt corrective action".

TREAS—OTS

Completed Actions

The OTS has issued a final rule to implement section 131 of FDICIA which established a regulatory framework that requires or permits the OTS to take certain supervisory actions when savings associations fall within specifically enumerated capital categories. Certain activities are restricted or prohibited and a capital restoration plan must be submitted once a savings association has become undercapitalized. The rule sets forth five capital categories and proposed procedures for issuing and contesting prompt corrective action.

For those of you who must keep informed about Presidential Proclamations and Executive Orders, there is a convenient reference source that will make researching these documents much easier.

Arranged by subject matter, this edition of the Codification contains proclamations and Executive orders that were issued or amended during the period April 13, 1945, through January 20, 1989, and which have a continuing effect on the public. For those documents that have been affected by other proclamations or Executive orders, the codified text presents the amended version. Therefore, a reader can use the Codification to determine the latest text of a document without having to "reconstruct" it through extensive research.

Special features include a comprehensive index and a table listing each proclamation and Executive order issued during the 1945-1989 period—along with any amendments—an indication of its current status, and, where applicable, its location in this volume.
